Austin News

- For the second year in a row, the WSJ ranked Austin as the top job market in the U.S. The ranking comes from The Wall Street Journal, which used data from Moody's Analytics to rank large metro areas across the nation. The rankings were based on unemployment rates, new jobs and wage growth, among other factors.
- The Case for Texas. The Texas economy is strong and growing – the second largest in the United States, tenth largest in the world, with people (and talent) flooding in. 51 Fortune 500 companies, $170 billion in capital managed by university endowments, and a low cost of doing business (no taxes!).
- Austin ranked #3 in the Milken Institute's list of 2020 Best Performing Cities. The index is focused on job creation, wage growth, and innovation industry metrics.
- Check out the Austin tech startups that raised capital or were acquired in February
- Expedia Group to lay off thousands of employees, approx. 12% of its direct workforce. Expedia Group is the parent company for Austin-based HomeAway, which was recently rebranded as Vrbo. HomeAway was acquired for $3.9B in 2015.
- Tech Ranch, one of Austin's first startup incubators, is launching its Pioneer Program: US Market Entry. This is a new program focused on helping founders in Mexico and Canada expand their tech businesses into Texas after the new USMCA trade agreement. This program is a collaboration between Tech Ranch and Austin-based DiTa, Juice Consulting, and SaveDay.
