Call me a sucker for a great story, but did you hear that one about the Austin-based tech company that just had a tremendous IPO, after receiving their first VC investment derived from a cold email?? Makes you think twice about blind outreach, and maybe I just love the stories where the good guys win... Congrats to the team at local legal-tech company DISCO on making their public debut last week, and a massive outing it was, closing the week with a market cap at of over $2.5B. Also a major outcome for their first institutional investor and my venture alma mater LiveOak Venture Partners.

Thank you to this week's sponsor, Vela Wood!
